THE BRITISH AT CORINTO

The News That They Have Taken Possession Confirmed.

UNCLE SAM WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Our Government Recognizes the Right of Great Britain to Demand Indemnity for the Indignities to Consul Hatch, and Has Advised Nicaragua to That Effect.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Dispatches received by the Associated Press from London and Costa Rica throw a good deal of additional light on the attitude of the administration in regard to the Nicaraguan incident. It is evident that both the United States and the Central American republics were anxious to secure a peaceful settlement of the difficulty by the payment of the indemnity demanded by Great Britain for the expulsion of Consul Hatch. President Yglesias, of the republic of Costa Rica, if the cable advices are correct, offered to contribute a portion of the money, while the state department here, through Ambassador Bayard, at London, arranged for an extension of two weeks in which the money could be raised if Nicaragua would agree to settle on this basis.

It is not known exactly what representations were made to the state department here by Nicaragua or Nicaragua's representative to induce Secretary Gresham to cable Mr. Bayard these instructions, but as the popular feeling in Nicaragua was all against yielding, it is believed that the government at Managua concluded, out of deference to it and possibly as a means of its own preservation, to stand out in the hope of ultimately inducing, if possible, the active intervention of the United States. It is said that the state department has along advised Nicaragua that the expulsion of Consul Hatch was an offense that no self-respecting country could overlook, and that prompt reparation was due Great Britain.

When Lampton and Wiltbank, the citizens of the United States, were expelled from Bluefields last July for alleged complicity in the very conspiracy to defy Nicaraguan authority on the Mosquito coast, in which it was said Consul Hatch was involved, the sentiment in this country was strong, and the state department took such vigorous steps that Lampton and Wiltbank were not only permitted to return, but were restored to all their rights and property and a public ball was given in their honor. At that time it was believed that Nicaragua would show the same willingness to furnish redress to England that she did to the United States. But by continued delay matters were allowed to reach the acute stage, and Great Britain, in accordance with the terms of her ultimatum, seized Corinto to enforce the payment of the indemnity claimed to be due her.

Much interest is manifested in diplomatic circles in the situation. Secretary Gresham drove out to Woodley yesterday afternoon and had a long consultation with the president. On his return the secretary of state declined to give out anything. The fact that the United States has been officially advised of the occupation of Corinto by the British is, however, definitely ascertained. The situation in Nicaragua, with the British occupying Corinto, and that port, declared closed by the Nicaraguan government, presents possible complications. From the best information obtainable it seems almost certain that the administration will not attempt any interference with the dispute between Nicaragua and Great Britain as long as the latter confines itself to the collection of the indemnity.

The United States has maintained in the past that European powers could, in all their dealings with South and Central American countries, conduct their disputes in their own way as long as they did not seek to overthrow existing governments, set up monarchies or protectorates or acquire territory. Such was the substance of the notice served by Secretary Seward on France and Great Britain with regard to Mexico in 1882.

If the occupancy of Corinto falls in its object, and Great Britain should declare war on Nicaragua, it is said that the administration would still decline to interfere so long as the war was carried on not for the aggrandizement of Great Britain or the acquisition of territory, but for the sole purpose of collecting the indemnity. To go beyond that, however, the administration, it is said, would consider a violation of the Monroe doctrine, also an express violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and would not be tolerated.

It is pointed out that for the United States to interfere to prevent England from carrying out the present method of collecting the debt would be equivalent to declaring a virtual protectorate over Nicaragua and would commit this government to a police with regard to the Central and South American countries that would keep her involved in endless broils with European powers. It would give these states the privilege of resisting just claims of other countries and taking refuge behind the skirts of the United States. In other words all diplomatic correspondence relative to those states would practically be carried on through Washington. Besides it would greatly embarrass this government in the enforcement of its own claims against these countries.

But it is not believed in official circles that Nicaragua will carry her resistance much further. Public sentiment in Nicaragua, it is believed, has compelled President Zelaya to make a show of resistance and to issue his appeal to the world, but it is confidently believed that rather than suffer the seizure of other ports or bombardment she will comply and pay the indemnity. There is some difference here as to the declaration of Nicaragua that Corinto is closed as a port of entry will be recognized.

Nicaragua Was Using Its

LONDON, April 29.—The United States government attempted to amicably adjust the pending dispute between Great Britain and Nicaragua. Ambassador Bayard represented to the British foreign office that Nicaragua, if given two weeks additional time from the expiration of the three days fixed in the ultimatum, would meet Great Britain's demand for the payment of $150,000 indemnity for the expulsion of Consul Hatch. Lord Kimberley acceded to this, but as Nicaragua at the last moment refused to acquiesce in this arrangement the original plan of occupying Corinto was carried out. It is now known here that Nicaragua secured the intervention of the United States for the sole purpose of delay.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

The Penrose Resolutions Will Doubtless Be Favorably Reported.

HARRISBURG, April 29.—There is nothing but the hardest kind of work for the state lawmakers, especially the members of the house, from now until the close of the session. The committees are working day and night to get rid of the bills not yet acted upon, so that the members may be free to give all their attention to the general calendar of bills. The house committees have about cleared their calendars of house bills, and are disposing of senate bills as fast as they come over.

The congressional apportionment bill will be brought out this week by the house committee. Chairman Lawrence has prepared a bill which he will submit to the committee tomorrow morning. It gives Philadelphia and Allegheny each an additional congressman and makes no material change in the other districts in the state outside these two counties.

The proceedings of the senate will be watched with keen interest this week. Everybody is waiting to hear of the action of the judiciary general committee on the Penrose resolution to investigate the operation of the Bullitt bill. The committee will meet tomorrow, and an attempt will be made to bring out the resolution without delay. There is no doubt as to the action of the committee. Three-fourths of its members are friendly to Senator Penrose, and will vote to report the memorial favorably. Senator Quay will be here this week, and it is thought he will be consulted by President Pro Tem. Thomas and Senator Penrose before the committee is announced. Senator Kennedy, of Allegheny, seems to be the general favorite for chairman. He is a personal and political friend of Senator Quay.

Need for More Coaling Stations.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The recent experience of Admiral Meade in his cruise with a squadron through the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea has served to again attract the attention of the officials of the navy department to the necessity of acquiring at least one or two coaling stations in those waters for the use of the navy. Although the cruise lasted only a few weeks the difficulty of procuring a sufficient supply of coal at convenient points and at reasonable prices has strikingly indicated the trouble that may be expected when it shall be necessary to maintain for long periods of time, or perhaps permanently, a number of cruising gunboats in those waters.

Mysterious and Murderous Assault.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 29.—While walking on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks west of this city last Saturday night William Haines was mysteriously assaulted. He became unconscious, and when found by a track walker blood was flowing from a great wound in the abdomen, and his person was otherwise shockingly mutilated. He can give no description of his assailants and the object of the attack is a mystery, as no attempt was made to rob him. He was brought to a hospital here, and his condition is critical.

To Crush the Cuban Rebels.

MADRID, April 29.—Marshall de Campos, captain general of Cuba, has drawn up a plan of campaign against the rebels. He will go to Santiago de Cuba in three or four days from Havana. Bands of rebels under command of Capote Miro, and Carbello, pillaged a small town on Wednesday last. They were pursued by government troops, and in a skirmish that ensued the insurgents lost one killed and three wounded.

Fell Headlong to Death.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 29.—Charles Donohue, aged 37, met a horrible death by falling headlong down the shaft at the Clear Spring colliery in Pittston. He was last seen by the engineer going toward the shaft and as he gave no signal to be lowered the engineer thought he had gone away. He was found some time afterward at the foot of the shaft, which is forty feet deep, horribly crushed, not a whole bone remaining.

Colored Oysterman Murdered.

PORT NORMAN, N. J., April 29.—During a street row at Long Beach, a short distance from this place, A. Wilkes Booth (colored) was stabbed to death. The police have arrested Alexander Hayes and three other negroes, whom they charge with being implicated in the murder. Booth was one of the men imported from Baltimore to take the places of oystermen on the boats in the Delaware.

Price Taken Back to Denton.

DENTON, Md., April 29.—Marshall E. Price, charged with the murder of 14-year-old Sallie E. Dean on March 26, was brought to Denton today for his trial, which begins tomorrow. The people of Caroline county are still enraged against Price, and he was under a strong guard of Baltimore policemen.

A ROMANCE OF CRIME.

The Murder of Johanna Logue No Longer a Mystery.

JIMMY LOGUE NOT THE MURDERER.

The Real Murderer an Illegitimate Son of One of Logue's Former Wives—He Admits the Crime, but Declares It Was Involuntary Manslaughter.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—While a large portion of the Philadelphia population was attending church yesterday there lay on a desk in a dingy little room down town the skull of a murdered woman. Around it were grouped half a dozen newspaper men, two doctors and in the center of the group Coroner Samuel H. Ashbridge and Detective Geyer. There, for six long hours, was unfolded a story of crime beside which the spirit of romance pales her ineffable fires. The central figure in the story is James E. Logue, known to the police departments of the continent as "Jimmy" Logue, burglar, bank robber and one of the most notorious all round crooks in the annals of crime. The case turned upon the murder of one of Jimmy's wives, Johanna Logue, but it was a fitting climax to a remarkable tale that proved that Jimmy was not the murderer, after all.

On the night of Feb. 22, 1879, Johanna Logue vanished from sight as suddenly and as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed her. The newspapers at the time were full of it, rewards were offered, and no one was more indefatigable in his efforts to locate the woman than Logue himself. But there was no trace, and gradually the case faded from memory. On Oct. 16, 1893, fourteen years afterwards, a carpenter repairing the house No. 1330 North Eleventh street tore up some boards in the kitchen, and there found the skeleton of a woman. Clinging to the bones of the throat was a handkerchief, tied in a knot, and next to the mouldering bones lay the soles of a woman's shoes. This was all that remained of Johanna Logue.

When it became known that Logue and his wife had lived in the house suspicion at once pointed to him as the murderer, but all search for him proved unavailing. On the evening of March 5 last Jimmy Logue went to Coroner Ashbridge's private residence here and gave himself up. From that time on Coroner Ashbridge and Detective Geyer worked together in secret until they had unraveled the complete story, which culminated a few days ago in the arrest of a man whose identity was not revealed until yesterday. He is Alphonso Cutlar, Jr., the illegitimate son of one of Logue's former alleged wives. He is locked up at the city hall on a charge of murder, while in a neighboring cell is Logue, held as the star witness.

Cutlar's crime—for he has made a confession in which he acknowledges causing the woman's death, though, he asserts, involuntarily—is best understood from a brief recital of Logue's career.

He was already a notorious character when, in 1853, he was married to Mary Jane Andrews. With her he lived two years, when, without the formality of a divorce, he was wedded to Mary Gahan, who, though she had not before been a wife, was the mother of an 18-months-old child, Alphonso Cutlar, Jr. Logue and Mary had not lived long together when he became enamored of her sister, Johanna Gahan, whom he established in a separate household, paying all expenses, until, in 1869, Mary died.

Meanwhile Jimmy had been working hard at his "profession," and he fell into the hands of the police for a series of burglaries. On May 23, 1891, he was arraigned for sentence, but before the case proceeded he asked Magistrate Smith to do him a favor first. He wanted to be married to Johanna. The magistrate complied and Logue, standing in the dock, was married to the woman. Then he was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary.

Promptly upon his release, in 1877, Logue and Johanna went to New York, where for a time he operated with the equally notorious Peter Burns, who died some years ago in a jail in Florence, Italy. Logue raised money in some way, for not long after his release he bought $20,000 worth of government bonds. In February, 1879, Logue and the woman came to this city. Meanwhile young Cutlar had become a barber, and Logue bought out for him the business of his former employer, William Matthews, at 1218 North Eleventh street, and later bought the adjoining property, 1250, for $3,500, and fitted it up as a shop for Cutlar, Logue and Johanna living with him in the dwelling portion.

A few days after this Logue and the woman went to New York for a short visit. Then Logue fell in with another burglar named George Mason, and on the evening of Feb. 20 the two men left for Boston, telling Johanna they would return shortly. The following Tuesday Logue returned and found his wife gone. He came to Philadelphia and went to his home. There he found Cutlar, his journeyman, Fritz Eckert, and a young apprentice named Harry Fricke.

Cutlar told him that the last he had seen of Johanna was on the preceding Saturday. She had come from New York, visited some friends, and spent some time at the barber shop. At 7 o'clock in the evening she opened the door of the shop, cried "I'm off," and was gone. He had seen that she was intoxicated and called to her to wait until he was at leisure so that he could escort her to the railroad station, but she did not wait. Logue at once thought that she had eloped with Peter Burns, but it was found that Burns had sailed alone for Europe, and all trace of the woman was lost. At the time she was about 35 years old. With the assistance of her brother, Peter Gahan, Logue searched the country far and wide for her, but to no avail.

The next event was when he was caught with Johnny Irwin in the cigar store of Portsmouth & Co. at Broad and Chestnut, in November 3, 1879, and was sent to prison for three years and nine months. This sentence was immediately followed by two years for robbing houses in Reading, and again, on Aug. 2, 1881, he was given six years for another burglary. His last sentence was ten months, imposed on June 21, 1892, for robbery, and after his release on April 22, 1893, he was lost sight of until he gave himself up to Coroner Ashbridge.

At the time of her disappearance the woman wore a pair of diamond earrings, a diamond finger ring, a gold wedding ring given to her by Logue, bearing the inscription "J. L. to J. L." and a gold watch and chain. The wedding ring was found upon the finger of the skeleton. In the bosom of her dress at the time were four $1,000 government bonds. When they moved to the Eleventh street house in 1879 Logue secreted seven of these bonds under the carpet of the stairway, telling no one but Cutlar where they were. When he returned from New York he found that Cutlar had stolen one of the bonds and sold it to Drexels for $1,045. Of this money he gave $1,000 to Sallie E. Camp, who afterwards became his wife, but upon Logue's threats he got the money back and returned it to him. Cutlar and his wife lived at the house for a year after Johanna's disappearance, when the foul odor coming from the boards of the kitchen made the woman so sick that they were compelled to move away. After that the house had numerous tenants up to the time of the discovery.

The warrant for Cutlar's arrest was sworn out by Logue on April 6 of this year, and six days later he was taken into custody. Then search was made for Eckert, the journeyman, and he was found at work in a New York barber shop.

Fricke was found in Philadelphia, and then came another startling feature. He is a nervous, excitable young German, and had always been a trifle unsteady in mind, but when he found himself involved in the story his mind became unbalanced, and it became necessary to send him to the insane department of the Philadelphia hospital. After he had been sent there it was found that, by some strange fate, the superintendent of the very ward in which he was lodged was none other than Alphonso Cutlar, Sr., father of the accused murderer, and Fricke was hastily transferred to another ward.

After Cutlar's arrest several attempts were made to extort a confession from him, and he narrated a number of detailed stories of the crime, naming Logue as the perpetrator, but eventually he broke down, and on April 17 he told the true story. He said that when the woman signified her intention of returning to New York she was intoxicated, and he induced her to wait until he could accompany her to the station. He took her up stairs to the second story back room, and made her get into bed, with her clothes on. Then, he avers, to prevent her getting away before he could go with her, he bound her hand and foot. This was at 7 o'clock in the evening. Four hours later he found her lying on her face, with her head under the bolster, smothered to death in an evident attempt to break her bonds. The next day he buried the body under the kitchen floor. He admitted having taken her jewels, but denied any knowledge of the $1,000 bonds which she was said to have in her bosom.

The original story told by Logue was borne out in every detail by the investigations of the coroner and the detective, but they further found that Cutlar had for years been pursuing a crooked career. His story of the woman being accidentally smothered is generally discredited, and it is believed that he deliberately murdered her.

The official inquest in the case will be held on Wednesday.

House Wrecked by Natural Gas.

PITTSBURGH, April 29.—At Edgewood, a suburb, the residence of Attorney A. L. Spindler was blown apart by an explosion of natural gas, which leaked into the cellar through a drain. Rebecca Spindler was probably fatally injured by falling from the second floor to the cellar. Two other explosions wrecked the adjoining dwelling houses of A. L. Swift, Professor D. W. Downing and T. A. Johnston. The loss is $25,000.

Crushed by a Fall of Coal.

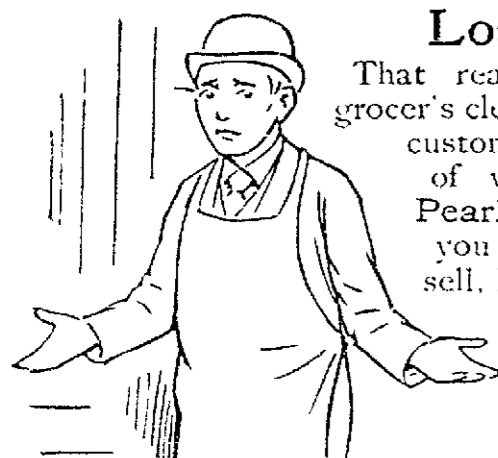

TANAPAG, Pa., April 29.—David Liddle, an employe of Bell colliery, at Tuscarora, was killed by a fall of coal. Liddle and his battle were waiting for a shot to go off, when a prop in the mines gave way, letting down a fall of coal, which buried him. When the men inside commenced to dig the coal an additional fall took place, preventing the recovery of the body for several hours.

ELKTON, Md., April 29.—Rev. C. R. Farley, recently appointed pastor of the Catholic church here was probably fatally stricken yesterday with apoplexy. Rev. Mr. Farley is 60 years of age.

Lost his Position.

That really happened to a certain grocer's clerk, because he couldn't induce customers to take an inferior brand of washing powder in place of Pearline. The grocer said, "If you can't sell what I want you to sell, I don't want you."

Now it doesn't take a very wise woman to decide whether this was an honest grocer. And a woman wise enough for that, would be likely to insist upon having nothing but Pearline. There is nothing "as good as" or "the same as" Pearline, the original—in fact, the only—washing-compound. If they send you something else, send it back.

SOO HOO NAM ART'S AMBITION.

He Will Become a Clergyman and Attempt to Convert Other Chinamen.

Soo Hoo Nam Art, an ambitious young Chinaman of San Francisco, has just completed his English theological course and expects to soon become a Presbyterian minister. For two years he has been the assistant of Rev. T. M. Condit of the First Chinese Church, San Francisco, and is now considered competent to preach. He began studying theology in China and in 1893 passed such a successful examination before the Canton presbytery that he was ordained to preach in China. Desiring, however, to become as proficient in English as he was in Chinese and to be able to preach on two continents, he returned to San Francisco and began a theological course in English. Thus far, it is said, but two Chinese have been ordained to preach in America, but there are four in this country.

In speaking of his work Soo Art said recently:

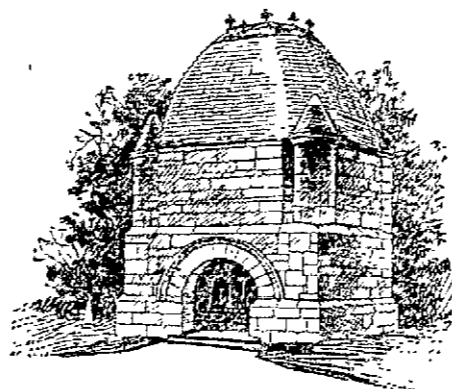

"I first came to America in 1875, and my object was to earn money for the support of my widowed mother and little brothers in China. I was only a poor beardless boy of 14 years when I arrived and had little education. I had been here but a short time when I heard there were free schools open for Chinamen, and how I wanted to go to them! But I could not because I was employed in a cigar factory and had to work hard and late to get my living. The only chance I had to learn was on Sunday. How glad and busy I was on that day. I took my book with me and attended four Sunday schools and several meetings every Lord's day. After awhile I became converted. Two years later I went to Santa Rosa to work, and while there helped organize and carry on a school for my countrymen. After awhile I gave up my business and devoted my time entirely to Christian work as a colporteur. Early in the eighties I returned to China to get married, intending to come right back, but I found a great work for me there. I shall probably continue as Dr. Condit's assistant for a time. There is much to be done among the Chinese here."

A THOUSAND TINY TOMBS.

San Francisco's Columbarium for the Ashes of the Cremated Dead.

That cremation is constantly growing in favor in the United States is emphatically demonstrated by the recent completion, near San Francisco, of a substantial structure that it is expected will one day hold all that is mortal of 1,000 people. The building is called a columbarium and has 1,000 tiny rooms, which are destined to hold urns containing the ashes of persons who have been incinerated. The little rooms or pigeon-holes have placards on the outside, which will bear the name of the deceased and other facts for identification. The urns in which the ashes are sealed are artistic vessels of pottery or metal and may be removed from the niches in which they are deposited. The tiers of niches for the reception of the urns are reached by means of a bronze staircase.

The columbarium, the only one of the kind in America, is the property of the San Francisco Cremation society and is a fireproof structure of Romanesque design. It is 45 feet high and 28 feet square, and the walls are built of granite a foot thick and are re-enforced by an inner brick wall two feet thick. The dome-like roof is a frame of iron, covered with terra cotta. In the crown of the dome is a skylight, through which the midday sun throws a flood of radiance. There are no windows, and the only light falls from above. The floor is laid in mosaic, with a large bed of flowers in the center. The arch-shaped entrance to the columbarium is guarded by an artistic but very substantial metal door, and watchmen will be constantly on guard about the building to prevent ghouls from breaking in and carrying away the urns.

The building is so planned that wings may be added at any time, but it is believed that many years will pass before the 1,000 tiny rooms in the columbarium will be filled.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Humorous Account of a Whale Soon to Be Exhibited in New York.

Cetaceum, late of the Whales' School of Oratory and Acting, arrived in New York the other day. He didn't look hale or rosy or even respectable. He is going to get full of barrels, and in that beastly condition a shrewd Yankee tug-boat agent will make a show of him.

Cetaceum is hardly a specialist in feats of strength. He is getting stronger, though. As he lies swinging back and forward with the tide out near Bedloe's island the masters of passing vessels note his increasing strength. He is rather unevenly developed. At least the captains who go to windward seem to think he is much stronger than do those on the lee side.

Cetaceum left his school off Chatham, Mass., and died. He rolled over on his back and drifted. A shark came along and ripped off several square feet of his waistcoat and was leisurely chewing it when the tug Taurus hove in sight and chased the evil fish away.

The whale was drifting in shore when the Taurus saved him from being hopelessly stranded. He passed a line around the monster and tied it. He was so strong even in death that some of the crew did not care to go near him.

All sorts of craft saluted the procession. Cetaceum passed Hunter's point unheeded. His presence was perceptible when he got farther down stream, and he had not been brought to rest for half an hour before the denizens of Liberty and Ellis islands knew that something new had come into their lives.

Cetaceum, as he lay on his back astern of the Mercedita, looked like a big striped bedtick or an overturned clinker boat. From head to tail his white underbody was marked by longitudinal corrugations. He looked something like a washboard.

If he had a trunk full of press notices, he could not have been more puffed up. He was swollen to one-third more than his normal size. "Man," as Captain O'Brien remarked, "a Yarmouth bloater is not in the same class."

A very large sand scow will be pushed into a dry dock and sunk. The whale will be slid upon it, the water will be drawn off, and Cetaceum will be raised high and dry.

On board the scow Professor Smith and his assistants will put Cetaceum in condition and fill him up with barrels of disinfectants. Professor Smith is sure that Cetaceum will then give a performance which will be entirely unobjectionable even to the most refined and discriminating.

The whale will then be towed to an East river pier, where a tent will be built around him.

Several bold men with large feet walked over the whale and tried to measure him. It is estimated that he is about 79 feet long.—New York Herald.

Not Looking For Him.

A woman was standing in the front door of the West Virginia cabin when I rode up to it, and saluting her she saluted me in return.

"Does William Moxley live here?" I asked.

"Yes," she replied. "What do you want of him?"

"Hasn't he a walnut tree for sale?"

"Yes, in that's about all he's got."

"Is he at home?"

"No."

"When are you looking for him?"

"I ain't lookin' for him."

"He hasn't left the country, has he?"

"Not as I know of."

"Where is he?"

"He's gone down to papa's."

"Then of course you're looking for him back. Old man Gaillon is your father, isn't he, and he only lives a mile or so down the road?"

"Yes, but I ain't lookin' for him back."

"Why not?" And by this time I had begun to think the woman was a little daft.

To Commemorate Her Victories.

Japan is to have its own Eiffel tower. The Eastern World, published at Yokohama, announces that a number of Japanese patriots in Tokyo have conceived the idea of so commemorating their victories. The tower will be 1,000 feet high, and the lowest story is to contain an exhibition of national industries, while the highest will be a Wauhalla, devoted to the statues of Japanese patriots who have died for their country. The cost is to be $250,000, and European contractors are invited to send estimates.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE PERSECUTION OF WALLER

His Counsel Hopes to Secure Indemnity for the Imprisoned Man.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Ex-Congressman John M. Langston, the attorney of ex-Consul Waller, who is imprisoned at St. Pierre, in the French West Indies, is pushing the case with all the power he possesses.

"In the first place," said he, "we propose to maintain the concessions obtained by Mr. Waller in Madagascar. The whole purpose of this persecution and persecution of Waller by the French government was to desert him of the concessions he procured. The French government realizes that the concessions are of immense value. Then we intend to force the French government to pay to Waller an indemnity commensurate with the persecution he has undergone. He was given a mock trial, was threatened and finally conveyed to France, where he now lies in prison awaiting a civil trial."

Mr. Langston said the amount of indemnity to be asked would be determined after he had communicated with Waller. Mr. Langston is entirely satisfied with the course of the state department, which he said had called for a thorough investigation of and report on the case by Minister Eustis at Paris, and the consul at Tamatave, Madagascar. As soon as these are received, if they are shown to bear out Mr. Waller's representations, Mr. Langston expects the administration to take prompt action looking to the release of the prisoner and to demand from France a proper money indemnity.

CUT HIS THROAT WITH A RAZOR.

The Alleged Murderer of Mrs. Blackwell Tries to End His Life.

EASTON, Pa., April 27.—Samuel C. Carpenter, of this city, accused of the murder of Mrs. Ray Blackwell, of Philadelphia, N. J., cut his throat in the cell occupied by him, and is now lying at the point of death. Carpenter, who is about 42 years of age, was formerly postmaster at Asbury, but moved to Easton about six months ago. He is married and has several children. His married name was for a year past Carpenter, but he changed it to Blackwell, the name of a physician formerly residing in Madison, N. J. Carpenter visited her on Friday night, leaving soon after 10 o'clock. A few hours later the woman's body was found with a bullet hole in her right temple and a revolver by her side, evidently placed there to create the impression that the woman had committed suicide. Carpenter borrowed a razor from Patrick Morgan, a fellow prisoner, upon the pretext that he wanted to shave himself. Carpenter said to Morgan: "I am innocent of the murder of Mrs. Blackwell, and I want you to tell everybody I said so." Then he drew the razor across his throat, and fell before Morgan's eyes.

Sympathy for a Man Slayer.

MILWAUKEE, April 27.—City Treasurer Luscombe was formally placed under arrest yesterday afternoon, charged with murder in the first degree for shooting his brother-in-law, Emil A. Sanger, brother of the champion bicyclist, Saturday night. The prisoner was released on $10,000 bail. Public sympathy seems to be with Luscombe. Even some of the members of the Sanger family do not bear him any great resentment, knowing, as they did, that the murdered man had cruelly beaten his wife and threatened to kill Luscombe. Sanger went to the Luscombe home on Grand avenue and Fifteenth street, where his wife had taken refuge with her brother and father after he had beaten her, and when he tried to force an entrance Luscombe shot him through a heavy plate glass. His hand was filled with the pieces, instantly killing him.

Sisters Sentenced for Shoplifting.

PITTSBURGH, April 27.—Mrs. Mary Kobout, Mrs. Celia Stakely and Annie Deniston, the sisters convicted of shoplifting, were sentenced yesterday. Mrs. Kobout said her sisters were innocent, that she had got them into trouble. When told she would have to spend five years in the penitentiary she cried, "I will die there. I will never live to get out." Mrs. Stakely was also given five years, and Annie Deniston was sent to the Morgantown reformatory.

Two Killed on the New York Central.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., April 27.—Two men were killed on the Hudson River division of the New York Central railroad on Saturday. The Chicago limited, going south, struck a team at Crotona, injuring the driver so badly that he died soon afterwards. The special limited mail, going north, struck and instantly killed a laborer half a mile below Dutchess Junction.

Brakeman Megahan Ground to Death.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 27.—The body of William Megahan was found ground to pieces on the Pennsylvania railroad at Tipton, a few miles east of this city. It is supposed the extra train, of which Megahan was a brakeman, stopped at the point where he was killed and that he got off and in doing so slipped in front of the fast line west.

Reward for Mrs. Parnell's Assassin.

ROBERTSON, N. J., April 27.—A reward of $250 has at last been offered for information that will lead to the capture of the cruel assassin of Mrs. Parnell. The reward is offered through the office of the Pleas Richard P. Budd. Mrs. Parnell continues to improve, and Dr. Shipp now thinks she may pull through.

Electric Bitters is especially adapted to the cure of all kidney and liver troubles and offer gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. OLD PORT JERVISITES DYING OFF.

Only Four Left Out of a List of Thirty-Seven Made Eleven Years Ago.

On July 1st, 1884, several aged gentlemen who met in the shop of John M. Ridgeway, in Port Jervis, made out a list of the citizens of that village, who had reached the age of seventy years. There were thirty-seven names on the list which Mr. Ridgeway entered in a book and when one died his name was checked off.

Daring the eleven years that have since passed, all have died except four. These are Wm. J. Bell, aged 84; Alexander T. Johnson, 82; Mr. Ridgeway, 82, and Hugh McCombe, 81.

Funeral of Bridget Beirne.

The funeral of the late Bridget Beirne, which took place at St. Mary's Church, Port Jervis, Saturday, was very largely attended. A high mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of her soul and the Rev. Father Salley, in his sermon, paid an eloquent tribute to the worth of the deceased. Miss Beirne was a member of the Sodality of Mary, the members of which attended in a body. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The flower bearers were six young ladies, members of the Sodality. The pall bearers were Messrs. Edward J. Murphy, John Gibbons, Michael Latham, James Folio, James Colgan and Willie Flynn. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Brutal Murder by Whitecaps.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 27.—A special from Sevier county, the county seat of Sevier county, where a notorious gang of whitecaps have held forth for two years past, says: Thomas Gibson, a well to do farmer, was shot down in cold blood Saturday midnight. He and his 12-year-old daughter were alone in the house, when three men came and tried to get her father to come out. When he refused they knocked the door down, and when the father showed fight by raising a chair one of the whitecaps fired a load of shot from a double barreled shotgun into Gibson's body and he fell dead.

Coal Strikers Rioting.

MCDONALD, Pa., April 27.—The coal strike outlook here is decidedly threatening in the event of the Robbins Coal company's insisting on its policy of importing non-union men into its mines. As a result of the importation of twenty colored men there was a small riot. It began by the attempted rescue of a colored man from the hands of deputy sheriffs, who would be rescuer being a colored man. The plan of rescue was defeated, but women sympathizers engaged in the fray, and made things very lively for the deputies by hurling volleys of stones at them.

RARE COLONIAL RELICS.

Many of Them Will Be on View at Atlanta's Great Exposition.

The colonial committee of the woman's exhibit at the coming Cotton States and International exposition is hard at work interesting the women of the country in its proposed display. The Colonial Dames and Daughters of the American Revolution are heartily co-operating, and when the exposition opens many rare and valuable relics of colonial days will be on view in Atlanta. As the exhibits will be placed in a fire proof building many precious heirlooms will be sent to Atlanta that were not on view in Chicago. Every state that has a colonial history worth recognizing will be represented, and many will be honored by special state day celebrations. On North Carolina day, Nov. 7, for example, the anniversary of the battle of King's Mountain will be commemorated, and Virginia day, the greatest state day of all, Oct. 19, will be the anniversary of the capture of Cornwallis. All Colonial Dames and Daughters of the American Revolution have been invited to visit the exposition in Virginia.

MRS. W. L. PEEL.

day, and hundreds of them from all over the United States will be on hand. A feature of the occasion will be the grandest ball or reception that hospitable Atlanta is able to arrange for.

In speaking of the interesting exhibits the committee expects to secure, the chairman, Mrs. W. L. Peel, says:

"The organization of the various patriotic societies has done much to aid us. Owners of beautiful historic things now realize that in so far as looking at and venerating and admiring them they are to a certain extent the property of all. This spirit has enabled us to do with ease what would have hitherto been deemed impossible. We will demonstrate the entire history of colonial Virginia from the pipe of peace smoked by Powhatan and Captain John Smith, loaned by the Cabell family, to the last act which rendered Virginia free, when the proudest nation on earth bent the knee on Virginia soil to a grand Virginian. We have relics of Patrick Henry, never before loaned, and from North Carolina will come some lovely Ashe relics, and a beautiful portrait of the lost Thomas Burr, said to be the only one in existence. Georgia, South Carolina, Kentucky and other states will be well represented, and from Louisiana will come many dishes and vessels of beaten gold or silver, rare old portraits and gorgeous costumes left by the old Spanish grandees and French marquises."

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I have been in a distressed condition for three years from nervousness, weakness of the stomach, dyspepsia and indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely medicine; a few bottles of it have cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." Warrenton the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Sold by J. E. Mills, Middletown, N. Y.

Americans have been criticised for making money their God. Be this as it may, it cannot be questioned but that the impecunious, Old World blue bloods who come here for wives, make money their Goddess.

Speaker Crisp says that the talk concerning him as a presidential candidate is the veriest nonsense, for no Southern man will be nominated for the Presidency until at least another generation has passed away. Mr. Crisp thinks that the Democratic candidate in 1896 will be from the West, and will be nominated on a free silver platform.

Gov. Morton announces that he "has not time to give hearings on pending bills." Those who wish to influence executive action on legislative matters may send briefs, which, it goes without saying, may or may not be looked at. It was not so with Democratic Governors. Flower, Hill and Cleveland all had time to give citizens hearings on legislative measures that affected any of their interests.

Fire was discovered, early Sunday morning, in the assorting room of the laundry of the Willard State Hospital, at Ovid. The laundry is connected with the main building in which there are several hundred patients and for a time it was feared that the main building would be destroyed, but by hard work the hospital fire brigade confined the flames to the laundry building, which was entirely destroyed. In addition to the laundry, the building contained a shoe shop, tailor shop, sewing room, bakery, boiler room, engine room and much machinery. The loss is $150,000 and the hospital will be severely crippled and inconvenienced until the burned building can be rebuilt and refitted.

Henry Clews, in his Financial Review, says that one of the most gratifying signs of the times is the restoration of wages, "which is an evidence not only of an improvement in business, but carries with it the faith of employers that the change is of a substantial and permanent character." As an instance of business revival, Mr. Clews cites the case of the Washington Mills, one of the largest woolen manufacturing concerns in the country, which is running night and day to keep up with orders after having been shut down for many months. The goods manufactured by the Washington Mills are of the finest quality made in this country and the present demand for them indicates more liberal expenditures in a quarter where rigid economy has been exercised for a prolonged period.

MOVED BY WOMAN'S TEARS.

Why C. L. Sweezy Let Up on a Port Jervis Woman Who Stole a Bicycle.

From the Port Jervis Gazette

The bicycle which was obtained from dealer Sweezy, in Middletown, by a Port Jervis woman, on Friday afternoon, on the pretense of hiring it for a few hours, was brought home by the woman on the Mountain Express that night. Mr. Sweezy came here on train 1, on Saturday, and through the efforts of the police force was only a short time in locating the woman and the wheel. The bicycle was returned to him and after paying for his time and expense, court costs, etc., she was released. She wept bitterly over her predicament and her tears evidently had effect on Mr. Sweezy, for at this he discontinued the prosecution.

TO APPEAL TO THE BISHOP.

Pine Bush Methodists Want to Know Where They Stand—The Presiding Elder's Actions Unsatisfactory—The Church Without a Pastor and the Pulpit Vacant.

Mention has been made in these columns of the transfer of Pastor Jamison, from the Pine Bush M. E. Church, to Deposit, by Presiding Elder Schriver against the wishes of the members of the church and Rev. Mr. Jamison himself.

On Sunday, of last week, after the Elder had sent Mr. Jamison to Deposit, he filed the pulp of the Pine Bush Church himself in the morning, but the Walker Valley Church, which is a part of the charge, had no services during the day and there were none at Pine Bush in the evening.

The Presiding Elder left Pine Bush, giving the understanding that when Mr. Jamison returned from Deposit, if he desired to remain at Pine Bush, he could do so and the fact should be telegraphed to Mr. Schriver at Chester.

Mr. Jamison desired to remain and on Monday telegraphed that fact to Mr. Schriver. Then came the instructions to Mr. Jamison that he must go to Deposit and he went. But the members of the church heard never a word from the Presiding Elder. They expected of course that he would send some one to fill the pulpit, yesterday, but Saturday night came with no one there to preach.

A special meeting of the Official Board was held, at which it was resolved to send a committee to New York to meet Bishop Newman and lay the facts before him.

Messrs. D. T. Bowen and John Bell were named as such committee. They came to this city, last evening, and, this morning took an early train for New York.

As there was no announcement made that no services would be held, yesterday, everybody, of course, expected some one would preach, and people came from the country round about only to be disappointed. The people at Walker Valley, who have had no preaching for two Sundays, have not been heard from.

STRUCK HIS WIFE WITH AN AXE.
William Wright, of Monroe, in a fit of jealousy makes a murderous attack upon his wife.

In a fit of jealous rage, last evening, William Wright, of near Monroe, struck his wife on the head with the back of an axe, inflicting serious injuries, which may result in her death.

Wright was arrested and taken to Goshen jail. He will be given a hearing before Justice Carpenter at Monroe, to-morrow.

Wright is a carpenter and builder who lives about a mile from the village.

AN ERIE BRAKEMAN KILLED.

Robert B. Lamoreux, White Signalling Engineer, struck by the Milk Train and Instantly Killed.

Robert B. Lamoreux, a brakeman on the Erie, was struck and instantly killed by the milk train, at the center siding, just west of Goshen, this morning.

Conductor Hilferty's extra east bound freight train, on which Lamoreux was running, had broken in two, and Lamoreux was standing on the west bound track, giving signals, when the milk train, Engineer Steele, rounded the curve and caught him before he had time to get out of the way. Both legs were broken and the base of his skull was crushed. His neck was also broken.

The body was brought to this city on the milk train and Coroner Decker was notified. A jury was empanelled and an inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Lamoreux had been in the employ of the Erie for the past three years. He was formerly a fireman on the N. Y. C. and H. R. R. He leaves a wife in Port Jervis. The body was taken to Port Jervis, on train 21, by Undertakers Carley & Terwilliger.

MURDER AND ARSON.

A Crime that Shocks and Startles Ulster County—An Old Woman Murdered in Her Bed and Her House Set on Fire.

There is great excitement in Ulster county over the murder, early Saturday morning, of Mrs. Margaret Duffy, an old woman, who lived alone at Soney Hollow, six miles from Kingston. Her house was set on fire to hide the crime, but the fire was discovered by a neighbor, who rose early to prepare breakfast, and her son forced his way into the burning house, groped his way to Mr. Duffy's bed room and finding her, as he supposed unconscious, on her bed, bore her to the open air, where the discovery was made that her throat had been cut from ear to ear. The house was entirely destroyed and with it every clue that might have led to the detection of the murderer is believed to have been destroyed.

It is supposed that robbery was the motive for the crime, for Mrs. Duffy was popularly supposed to have considerable money. She had some trouble, not long since, with a tenant whom she evicted for non-payment of rent and it is said that he vowed vengeance, and his record is being looked up by the authorities. Allan Marsh, another of the train crew, was under a broken car, making a coupling with a chain and was badly squeezed by being backed down upon. He was taken to his home in Port Jervis.

DEATH OF AN OLD ERIE CONDUCTOR

Had Charge of the Train in the Carr's Rock Disaster—Died on the same Day as John Bowen.

Jasper B. Judd died at Blossburgh, Pa., April 25th, aged 67 years. He was the conductor of Erie train 12, when that train was wrecked at Carr's Rock, but escaped uninjured. It is a singular coincidence that he died on the same day as did John Bowen, who confessed to having caused that disaster.

He was one of the first conductors on the road. He had charge of the construction of the road on the Isthmus of Panama for two or three years and then returned to the Erie. Recently he has been employed on the Tioga Division.

—Joseph Wood, a resident of Independence avenue, lodged a complaint against a neighbor, Katherine Wern, for keeping a disorderly house, and also for selling liquor on Sunday and without a license. She pleaded guilty and was fined $35.

—C. O. Payne, a resident of Montgomery street, entered a similar complaint against Edward Fay and Johanna Stack, of Montgomery street. Warrants for all three alleged offenders were issued.

Annual Sermon to Odd Fellows.

The members of Middletown Lodge, I. O. O. F., attended the First Baptist Church in a body, last evening, to listen to the annual sermon, which was preached by Rev. F. A. Heath, on the subject: "The Lesson of Brotherhood."

The attendance was large and the sermon an excellent one, which pleased members of the order and others present.

MATTEAWAN ASYLUM CASES.

Application Made to Judge Brown for the Release of Two Prisoners.

At nearly every Special Term of Supreme Court held by Judge Brown in Newburgh, one or more applications are made for the release of patients from the criminal insane asylum at Matteawan. In some instances the Judge has ordered the release of the prisoners, and in others has refused to interfere.

There were two cases before him Saturday. One was James P. Haughey, whose sentence has expired and who, it is claimed, is not insane.

Haughey was put upon the stand, and there was nothing in his manner or his evidence to indicate insanity. Judge Brown ordered that he be examined by physicians who have no connection with the institution, and who shall not be interfered with by the asylum doctors.

The other case was that of Mrs. Fanny Kern, of New York. Dr. Allison says she is much improved, but is not yet recovered.

Mrs. Kern, turning to the Court, said: "I am working in Dr. Allison's family and am frequently left alone. Would that be the case if I was really insane?"

She also said if she is insane she will never get any better in that asylum, and asked to be sent to another institution.

Judge Brown denied the motion for her release, but ordered that the Commissioners in Lunacy be requested to transfer her to another hospital.

NOTES OF THE WOMAN'S PAPER.

Send in the 4c—Interesting Articles—Only for a Day —Advertisements for the woman's edition of the Argus must be handed in at once. Members of the editorial and business staff will be found at the office of the woman's edition, Low Building, every afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

—In "Echoes of the Bachelors' Easter H. p." in the woman's paper, a bright young woman will write up the ball from a young woman's point of view and discuss the Bachelors, their roller, appearance and doings in something like the vein that men reporters use concerning women when writing up such affairs.

—Among the many interesting and valuable articles that will appear in the woman's edition of the Argus will be one on Thrall Hospital, by Mrs. Finn, who has been a member of the Board of Managers and Treasurer of the institution since it was opened, and who therefore writes with a full knowledge of her subject.

—Some people, we find have an idea that the women are in the newspaper business to stay and propose to issue a paper once a month or at occasional intervals during the year. This is a mistake. They will edit and publish the Argus for but a single day, Saturday next, May 4th.

A BREWING COMPANY FAILS

Receivers Appointed by Judge Brown for the Beveridge Co. of Newburgh.

Deputy Attorney General Hasbrouck, of Kingston, appeared before Judge Brown at Special Term of the Supreme Court, Saturday, and made application for the appointment of temporary receivers for the Beveridge Brewing Co. He stated that the company had been insolvent for the past year, and the liabilities are now twenty thousand dollars in excess of the assets.

Judge Brown granted the application and appointed as receivers Howard Thompson and Wm. J. Hunter. The latter is the secretary of the Beveridge concern.

THE WAYS OF GERMAN CARP.

Stranded on Walkkill Lowlands They Are Living Without Water.

The unusually high water in the Walkkill River has receded from the meadows, leaving hundreds of German carp stranded on the lowlands. They have adapted themselves to circumstances and are drawing around themselves little patches of leaves, and like the robins, are nesting. It is no uncommon sight to see the males sitting from nest to nest, distributing their milt to insure the hatching process. The females seem to be content in their nests, while the males, bring them food. They do not seem to mind the change from water to dry land and are getting along nicely out of their natural element, the occasional rain storms being sufficient to keep them in good condition. Any comments by carping critics on this article will be resented. BIFF.

Jimmie Cashman's Fish Story.

Jimmie Cashman, one of Middletown's "boys about town," says he caught a five pound mackerel, Saturday, in the cemetery pond, or the "dead pond" as he puts it. He says he is sure it was a mackerel for he knows a mackerel when he sees it. For a ten-year-old, this is quite a fish story.

—Hi Henry's Minstrels are booked to appear in Music Hall, this village, on Saturday night next.

—The village Board of Trustees meets as a Board of Assessors in the Corporation Rooms at 7:30, Thursday night.

—A scrap took place, yesterday afternoon, at the barn of Mr. D. B. Ryerson, between James Colleton and a Polander in the employ of Mr. Ryerson. It is claimed that Colleton was drunk and first assaulted the Polander. Both were considerably cut and bruised. No arrests have been made.

—Can anybody explain why the contest between Goshen and Middletown newspaper bowlers has ceased? It must be because of the defeat the Middletown boys received in the first game of the series with the Goshen team. One would not suppose that Middletown newspaper men could become so easily discouraged as that.

—Mabel, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles House, died, Friday night, of cholera infantum, aged about four months. The funeral was held yesterday. Interment at Phillipsburgh.

Odd Fellows to Visit Goshen.

The degree team and a number of members of Middletown Lodge, I. O. O. F. will visit Orange Lodge at Goshen to-morrow evening and work the first degree. Two special cars have been engaged which will leave corner of North and Depot street at 7:30 sharp.

LIZZIE HALLIDAY AT MATTEAWAN

Quiet and peaceable and Fond of Talking to Canaries.

From the Newburgh Telegram.
Over at the Matteawan Asylum, which, by the way, has the correct and official title of "Matteawan State Hospital," I learn that Mrs. Lizzie Halliday, perhaps the greatest woman criminal in the world, has grown to be a very peaceable and good inmate. She gives the authorities no trouble whatever, and an outsider can now notice nothing wrong in the woman's actions. She is allowed all the privileges of the female wards and has her place at the table with the other poor specimens of womanhood. Freedom, it would appear from this, is too much for Lizzie's brain, and her thirst for gore only becomes manifest when she is in large. She is acting in just a like manner as when she was discharged from the asylum, on a previous occasion as cured; but Dr. Allison says this time she is in for life, her reprieve by Gov. Flower having read "from electrocution to incarceration for life." Mrs. Halliday's great hobby is to talk to the canaries in the dining room.

The Evolution.

Of medicinal agents is gradually relegating the old-time herbs, pills, draughts and vegetable extracts to the rear and bringing into general use the pleasant and effective liquid laxative, Syrup of Figs. Net Proceeds From "Caprice."

The net proceeds from the two nights' performance of "Caprice," at the Casino, were $150.14 and that amount was turned over to the treasurer of Thrall Hospital, this morning, by Manager Hathaway.

Installed as Deacon and Elder.

At the First Presbyterian Church, yesterday morning, Dr. T. C. Royce was installed as Deacon, vice B. C. Woodward, resigned, and Mr. Clarence H. Sweezy was installed as Elder, vice Dr. T. C. Royce.

—New York Ledger.THE YOUNG SEIGNEUR

His chief occupation in the daytime was to stand on the bench by the small barred window and watch the pigeons on the roof and in the eaves of the hospital opposite. For five years he had done this, and it was the one thing in his whole life during that time which had a charm for him. Every change of weather and season was registered there as plainly as if he could see the surface of the world. In the summer the slates seemed to have a great fire beneath them, for a quivering hot air rose up from them, and the pigeons never alighted on them save in the early morning or in the evening. Just over the peak of the roof could be seen the topmost branch of an oak, too slight to bear the weight of the pigeons, but the eaves under the projecting roof were dark and cool, and there his eyes rested when he tired of the hard blue sky and the glare of the roof. He could also see the top of the hospital windows, barred up and down, but never anything within, for the windows were ever dusty, and all was dark beyond. But now and then he heard bitter cries coming through one open window in the summer time, and he listened to them grow fainter and fainter, till they sank to a low moaning and then ceased altogether.

In winter the roof was covered for months by a blanket of snow, which looked like a shawl of impacted wool, white and restful, and the hospital windows were spread with frost. But the pigeons were the same—almost as gay and walking on the ledges of the roof or crowding on the shelves of the lead pipes. He studied them much, but he loved them more. His prison was less a prison because of them, and in the long five years of expiation he found himself more in touch with them than with the wardens of the prison or any of his companions.

With the former he was respectful, and he gave them no trouble at all. With the latter he had nothing in common, for they were criminals, and he—had blundered when wild and mad with drink, so wild and mad that he had no remembrance, absolutely none, of the incident by which Jean Vigot lost his life. He remembered that they had played cards far into the night; that they had begun playing cards and drinking again, and then all was blurred, save for a vague recollection that he had won all the money—Vigot had and had pocketed it. Then came a blank. He wanted to find two officers of the law beside him, and the body of Jean Vigot, stark and dreadful, a few feet away.

When the officer put their hands upon him, he shook them off. When they did it again, he would have fought them to the death had it not been for his friend, tall Medallion, who laid a strong hand on his arm and said, "Steady, Converse, steady!" and he had yielded to the firm, friendly pressure.

Medallion had left no stone unturned to clear him at the trial, had himself played detective unceasingly, but the hard facts remained there, and on a chain of circumstantial evidence Louis Converse, the young seigneur, was sent to prison for ten years for manslaughter. That was the compromise effected. Louis himself had said only that he didn't remember, but he could not believe he had committed the crime. Robbery? He shrugged his shoulders at that. He insisted that his lawyer should not reply to the insulting and foolish suggestion.

But the evidence had shown that Vigot had all the winnings when the other members of the party left the two, and this very money had been found in Louis' pocket. There was only Louis' word that they had played cards again. Answer? Possibly. Louis could not remember, though he knew they had quarreled. The judge himself, charging the jury, said that he never before saw a prisoner so frank and outwardly honest, but warned them that they must not lose sight of the crime itself, the taking of a human life, whereby a woman was made a widow and a child fatherless.

And so with the few remarks the judge sentenced the young seigneur to ten years in prison, and then himself, shaken and pale, left the courtroom hurriedly, for Louis Converse's father had been his friend from boyhood.

Louis took his sentence calmly, looking the judge squarely in the eyes, and when the judge stepped he bowed to him, turned to the jury and said: "Gentlemen, you have ruined my life. You don't know, and I don't know, who killed the man. You have guessed, and I take the penalty. Suppose I'm innocent. How will you let me when the truth comes out? You've known me more or less these 20 years, and you've said with no more knowledge than I've got that I did this miserable thing. I don't know but that one of you did it, but you are safe, and I take my ten years."

He turned from them, and as he did so he saw a woman looking at him from a corner of the courtroom with a strange, wild expression. At the moment he saw no more than an excited, bewildered face, but afterward this face came and went before him, flashing in and out of dark places in a mocking

The Sick May Receive Medical Service Free of Charge.

The President and members of the European and American Staff of German, English, Irish, Scandinavian and American Doctors of New York City will be at the Russell House, Middletown, on Tuesday, May 7th, one day only. The sick and afflicted may consult them without charge during their stay.

If you are incurable they will tell you; therefore invalids must not take offense if they are rejected, as no case will be accepted unless there is a moral certainty of a cure being effected. These Doctors are graduates of the best universities of Europe and America; they are of the highest standing in the medical profession and have had unlimited experience in the treatment of all Chronic Diseases and Deformities. As the latest methods, instruments and appliances of the various schools of both the Old and the New World are familiar to and at the command of this staff of doctors, it is reasonable to believe that in ninety cases out of every hundred a cure can be effected, even when the patients have been given up as incurable by doctors who have had less experience. Do not be discouraged because your doctor cannot give you relief, or even if he tells you that you cannot get well, for it matters not what your disease may be, you can consult the doctors free, and if curable, they will treat you; if incurable, they will give you such advice as will tend to prolong life and afford you the greatest relief.

The doctor visits Middletown one day each month. Will be at 18 Broom street, Port Jervis, Wednesday, May 8th. Office hours from 10:30 a. m. to 6 p. m.

W. G. TAGGART, Clerk.sort of way. As he went from the courtroom another woman made her way to him in spite of the guards. It was the little chemist's wife, who years before had been his father's housekeeper, who had been present when he first opened his eyes on the world.
"My poor boy! My poor boy!" she said, clasping his manacled hands.
He kissed her on the cheek, without a word, and hurried on to his prison, and the good world was shut out. In prison he refused to see all visitors, even Medallion, the little chemist's wife, and the good Father Faber. Letters, too, he refused to accept and read. He had no contact, wished no contact, with the outer world, but lived his hard, lonely life by himself, silent, brooding, studious, for now books were to him a pleasure. And he wrote, too, but never to any soul outside the prison. This life had nothing to do with the world from which he came, and he meant that it should not.

So perfect a prisoner was he that the wardens protected him from visitors, and he was never but once or twice stared at, and then he saw nothing, heard nothing. He had entered his prison a wild, excitable, dissipated youth, and he had become a mature, quiet, cold, brooding man. Five years had done the work of 20. He lived the life of the prison, yet he was not a part of it, nor yet was he a part of the world without. And the face of the woman who looked at him so strangely in the courtroom haunted him now and then, so that at last it became a part of his real life, which was lived largely at the window, where he looked out at the pigeons on the roof of the hospital.

"She was sorry for me," he said many a time to himself. He was sorry for himself, and he was shaken with misery often, so that he rocked to and fro as he sat on his bed, and a warden heard him cry out even in the last days of his imprisonment, "O God, caust thou do everything but speak?" And again, "That hour, the memory of that hour, in exchange for my ruined life!"

But there were times when he was very quiet and calm, and haggard hours in watching the ways of the pigeons, and he was doing this one day when the jailer came to him and said: "Mr. Converse, you are free. The governor has cut off five years from your sentence."

Then he was told that people were waiting without—Medallion and the little chemist and his wife and others more important—but he would not go to meet them, and he stepped into the old world alone at dawn the next morning and looked out upon a still, sleeping town. And there was no one stirring in the place, but suddenly there stood before him a woman, who had watched by the prison gates all night, and she put out a hand in entreaty and said, with a breaking voice, "You are free at last!"

He remembered her—the woman who had looked at him so anxiously and sorrowfully in the courtroom. He looked at her kindly now, yet he was dazed, too, with his new advent to freedom and the good earth.

"Why did you come to meet me?" he asked.

"I was sorry for you," she replied.

"But that is no reason."

"I once committed a crime," she whispered, with shrinking bitterness.

"That's bad," he said. "Were you punished?"

She shook her head and answered, "No."

"That's worse," he added.

"I let some one else take my crime upon him and be punished for it," she said, an agony in her eyes.

"Why was that?" he said, looking at her intently.

"I had a little child," was her reply.

"And the other?"

"He was alone in the world," she said.

A bitter smile crept to his lips, and his eyes were all afire, for a strange thought came to him. Then he shut his eyes, and when he opened them again discovery was in them.

"I remember you now," he said. "I remember I waked and saw you looking at me that night! Who was the father of your child?" he asked eagerly.

"Jean Vigot," she replied. "He left me to starve."

"I am innocent of his death!" he said quietly and gladly.

She nodded. He was silent for a moment.

"The child still lives?" he asked.

She nodded again. "Well, let it be so," he added. "But you owe me five years and a lost reputation."

"I wish to God I could give them back," she cried, tears streaming down her cheeks. "It was for my child, he was so young!"

"It can't be helped now," he said, and he turned away from her.

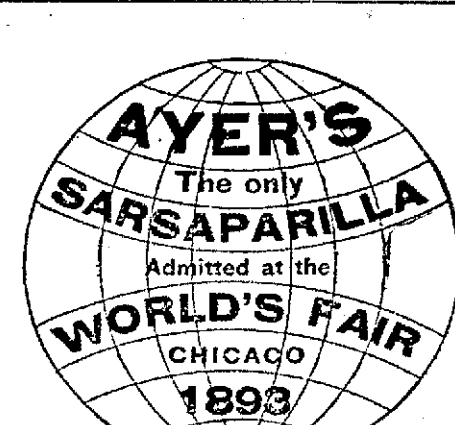

"Won't you forgive me?" she asked bitterly.

"Won't you give me back those five years?" he replied meaningly.

"If the child did not need me, I would give my life," she answered. "I owe it to you." Her haggard, hunted face made him sorry. He, too, had suffered.

"It's all right," he answered gently. "Take care of your child."

And again he moved away from her and went down the little hill with a cloud gone from his face that had rested there five years. Once he turned around. The woman was gone, but over the prison a flock of pigeons were flying. He took off his hat to them. Then he went through the town looking neither to right nor left and came to his own house, where the summer morning was already entering the open window, though he had looked to find the place closed and dark. The little chemist's wife met him in the doorway. She could not speak, nor could he, but he kissed her as he had done when he went condemned to prison. Then he passed on to his own room, and entering sat down before the open window and peacefully drank in the glory of a new world. But more than once he choked down a sob that rose in his throat.—Gilbert Parker in New York Herald.

Why Was It

that Ayer's Sarsaparilla, out of the great number of similar preparations manufactured throughout the world, was the only medicine of the kind admitted at the World's Fair, Chicago? And why was it that, in spite of the united efforts of the manufacturers of other preparations, the decision of the World's Fair Directors was not reversed?

BECAUSEAccording to RULE 15—"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition," and, therefore—
Because Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, and not a secret preparation.Because its proprietors had nothing to conceal when questioned as to the formula from which it is compounded.
Because it is all that it is claimed to be—a Compound Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla, and in every sense, worthy the endorsement of this most important committee, called together for passing upon the manufactured products of the entire world.Ayer's Only Sarsaparilla

The Boycott on High Priced Beef—Good and Cheap Substitutes—A Member of the "Bachelors" of Years Ago Indulges in Reminiscences—Our Unconscious Consciousness of the Lapse of Time.

The recent advance in the price of beef has resulted in a practical boycott being put on that meat by many families. Butchers say that their sales of beef have fallen off enormously, and that those who do the marketing for many families seem to have stricken beef from the bill of fare, while those who still buy beef do so at such long intervals that they may almost be said to now consume ounces where they once did pounds. Such general discontinuance of the use of what has always been the staple meat in nearly every household would not be possible if there had not been a general feeling that prices were high enough before, and that this last advance was in the nature of an oppression by the dressed beef monopoly. Even people who do not have to study economy in the matter of household expenses object to being pillaged, and it is a matter of principle for them to refuse to pay tribute to a grasping monopoly and so it is that they have joined those to whom the addition of a few cents per pound in beef prices is a matter of moment in practically boycotting steaks and roasts. No more effective way of bringing to terms the dressed meat trust could have been devised, for diminished consumption will soon make the short supply of live stock, concerning which the monopolists have had so much to say, equal to all the country's needs.

The advance in beef prices could not have come at a better time for the consumer. Veal is at its best; eggs were never so plenty and so cheap; the rivers are giving up their annual supply of the toothsome shad. It is little trouble to keep the table well supplied without high-priced beef.

The Bachelors' Easter hop happened to be mentioned, a day or two ago, when several of the "Bachelors" of years ago were talking together. One of the party, who had been a looker-on at the ball said: "I tell you what it is, the pace is a good deal faster for the young fellows now than it was in our dancing days. We thought we were doing the proper thing, and I suppose we were according to our lights, but Middletown then was a quiet village and did not assume city airs. You remember how it used to be. We took turns, as members of the carriage committee, in gathering up the girls and taking them to that bleak old attic, Empire Hall, and in taking them home again. It was very informal, but it answered every purpose. We often went to the hops from our places of business, in business clothes, and the girls often came in street dress. Our full dress hops were less elaborate affairs than the weekly hops are now, and such an affair as this Easter hop was far beyond our wildest dreams. It costs a pretty figure for a young man to do a social event in proper style, nowadays,—carriages, flowers and all that. Flowers were one of the things we used to omit. We had to, for the most excellent reason that we could not get them, unless we ordered them from New York, and that was an extravagance that fortunately suggested itself to no one. We got off very easily as compared with the young fellows who are in society now and when I think of the heavy tax their social obligations lay upon them, I'm quite reconciled to the knowledge that my 'green and salad days' were over a quarter of a century ago."

The unconscious consciousness of the lapse of time that we carry with us is one of the things that, if we were not so used to it, would fill us with wonder. A gentleman whom I know, one of those lucky mortals who does not begin his day's work until 9 o'clock, has for days and weeks pulled his watch from his pocket at precisely a quarter of 9 o'clock. This looking at the time is so entirely unnecessary on his part, so much a mere matter of habit, that I have come to know that when he feels an impulse to move his hand watchwards it is safe to bet that the hands of the watch are at 8:15. If they were not, I'd be sure that the watch was wrong, for I've more faith in my friend's consciousness of time than I have in the mechanism of his watch. Speaking the other day, of this quarter-of-nine habit, my friend said: "Really I've no need of a watch. I never carried one until recently, and yet I never missed a train or an engagement, always knew when dinner time came, and, in fact, could tell within a minute or two the exact time at any hour of the day." There are many who possess this same gift of knowing the time without any outside help, but I know of no one who can gauge the passage of time so accurately as my quarter-of-nine friend.

The strangest thing about this unconscious consciousness is that it goes on at night when all the mental processes are superseded in sleep. Those who are in the habit of rising at a certain hour will wake almost with certainty at that hour, six days in the week, but if they are in the habit of indulging in an extra hour's nap on Sunday morning, the mental clockwork runs on past the usual rising hour without giving any alarm to rouse the sleeper. Many people, too, have the power to wake at any unusual or unearthly hour and can sleep soundly, safe in the certainty that without thought or effort on their part, they will wake within a few minutes of the hour at which they desire to rise. Others, especially nurses and those assisting in the care of the sick, though "dead for sleep," acquire the power to take naps of definite length, fifteen minutes, half an hour or longer, and through some inexplicable process of unconscious cerebration will wake at the right moment. It's very odd the way we take note of time, even when we least know of it, and I haven't a bit of doubt that, if we only relied on ourselves and developed our powers in this direction, we could get along very comfortably without clocks and watches.

ONTARIO AND WESTERN NOTES.

New Rails, New Depot, New Bridges—Engine 72 to Be Rebuilt—Disabled by a Broken Tire.

The Ontario and Western is laying heavy steel rails between Crawford Junction and Campbell Hall.

A new depot is being built at Rockland, similar to the one at East Branch.

Three new steel bridges are being erected between Rockland and Livingston Manor, and it is intended to erect six more, to replace those which are too light to support the increased weight of the locomotives and the increased speed at which it is intended to run trains.

Engine 72 is now being dismantled, a spa story to sending her to the Dickson Locomotive Works to be rebuilt in the latest improved manner. On her return she will be placed in service on the Chicago Limited or flyer, in charge of John Puffenberger, who is familiarly called "King John" on account of the masterly manner in which he manipulates his forces or supporters in parliamentary battles in his Division.

Saturday, April 27th, engine 74, going south, on train 2, broke a tire near Crystal Run, which made it necessary to send another engine to take the train to Weehawken. Engine 142 was dispatched from this city for that purpose, and engine 74 was brought back to the shops for repairs.
